

INTERPRETATION: WHAT'S LEFT TO SAY?

TONI SCORSESE

She's the girl that can't read a ruler or the calendar.
Why does he believe she can read minds?

"Well, obviously."

They speak in different tongues, of unequal volumes.
One is chalk, the other cheese.
And the translator was fired.

For once she abdicates the floor:

CRICKETS...

"Well, obviously."

Close to fading dead away.
